Introducing a Property Registration System For Taxation in Ethiopia. The Case of Mettu Town - Tesfaye Kinde 2021-01-14

Master's Thesis from the year 2020 in the subject Business economics - Accounting and Taxes, grade: A, Ethiopian Civil Service University, language: English, abstract: The objective of this study is to describe the importance of introducing a real property registration system for property taxation system improvements. Mixed research approach has been used to collect and analyses data. Field activities including questionnaires, interviews and direct observation were undertaken in order to get information on the current situation of the property tax system and land registrations. Based on the analysis, the need for the property taxation in the study area, the gaps in the information provided by the current land register were identified. The results showed that the establishment of a real property registration system facilitated the property taxation process and consequently maximize property based revenue. Property taxation is one of the means to generate revenue by government for the local developments. To improve the property taxation government needs to ensure that its property records contain information that is beneficial to collect property taxation. Introducing a real property registration system that has complete contents and mechanisms to regularly updating is the most important tool to support the property taxation system. With regard to this, many authors have discussed the role of the real property registration system in general, but not enough researches have been carried out to investigate the value of establishing a real property registration system on property taxation. There is a direct strong relationship between real property registration system and improvements in property taxation. The study recommended that the current registration system should be remodelled to include the vital information such as property value, owners address and tax amount that is desired to collect property taxation. Comprehensive real property policies, cost-effective systematic registration and computerizing the records were suggested to improve the current deficiency of land register.

Impact Of Company Income Tax On Revenue Generation Of Federal Inland Revenue Service (Msto) Yola, Adamawa State Nigeria - Mivayi Japhet 2017-07-11

Project Report from the year 2015 in the subject Business economics - Accounting and Taxes, grade: upper credit, Federal University of Applied Administrative Sciences Haar (adamawa state polytechnic yola), course: accounting and auditing, language: English, abstract: The increasing cost of running a government coupled with dwindling revenue has led various state governments in Nigeria to formulating strategies to improve their revenue. This project shows the impact of company income tax on revenue generation in Nigeria. The method used in collecting data for this research work is through primary, personal observation and secondary data as the major source of information. The researcher administered the questionnaires randomly to the staff of Federal Inland Revenue Services, registered Company Income Tax agents and in some public places in Adamawa State. One hundred (100) questionnaires were generally administered to all the various respondents at the rate of one questionnaire per individual. The data collected were analyzed using simple percentage. The analysis revealed that there is no any marked difference in the various respondents' general perception of Company Income Tax on government revenue generation and its impacts on living condition of people in Adamawa State. Therefore, based on the findings, the study recommends among others that; the government agency responsible for the collection of companies income tax, the Federal Inland Revenue Service (FIRS) should work in liaison with the Commission (CAC) to ensure that all companies registered in Nigeria i.e. Foreign and Domestic meet their tax obligations to the nation.
